Join in the Praise at Delmas!

It is LOUD. It is JOYFUL. It is EXUBERANT. The worship songs that reverberate off the concrete walls come from the HEART. The PASSION coming from the congregation is CONTAGIOUS. How could this song leader and unemployed accountant, Jambon Severe, be praising God at the top of his lungs – and everyone around us with him? We couldn’t help but join in the torrent of praise, using our English words for those songs with familiar tunes. And how could 300+ members of the Delmas 28 Eglise du Christ squeeze into an 1,800 sq. ft. room without air conditioning? How blessed we’ve been to partner with this Spirit-filled group since our first trip in 1995, who were already reaching out to the poor despite their own poverty.

Parenn Meets Sponsored Child

What joy to witness the excitement in a sponsor’s face as they prepare to meet their sponsored child. The photo on their fridge is about to become a real, live boy or girl which they can shower with love and gifts of affection. In Haitian culture, a child’s sponsor is their “parenn” (godparent) – who prays for them and cares about all aspects of their life, including their spiritual future. When the meeting time arrives, the huge smile on the child’s face as they get to greet and thank their parenn is priceless.
A Simple Balloon

The remote village of Pageste was the inspiration for the artwork of our first HFHC logo, created by LeaAnne Cogswell using a 1995 trip photo. Evidently, this was the first time the children had ever seen or played with a balloon. As we began to bat the brightly-colored balloons upward, screams of delight filled the air! More and more children wanted to be included in the fun and tried to keep the balloons airborne. When one would finally land on a cactus needle—creating a loud “pop”—applause and more screams of delight would follow!

I Have Decided to Follow Jesus

In June 1999, our first Christian Leadership Camp was held in a downtown Port-au-Prince basketball gymnasium with a gigantic hole in the middle of the roof. This made the 3-legged race a bit more of a challenge after it rained, as our teens had to navigate through the water on center court! Our sponsored teens are always thrilled to be invited to come to camp. They have such fun playing together, studying and memorizing God’s Word, and understanding God’s plan as it relates to their personal lives.

Jeantyrard Elmera, senior minister for the Delmas congregation and HFHC-Haiti President usually closes out the last evening with a gospel message and an appeal for our teens to put their faith in Jesus and submit to baptism. This decision might be a costly one, since some teens come from families who are antagonistic to Christianity. In July 2016, during the song “Mwen te deside pou m swiv Leseyè” (I Have Decided to Follow Jesus), we were praying for several who had earlier indicated they were seriously considering this important step. What joy to see the first young man come forward, followed by 29 others! We didn’t have baptismal garments, but Jeantyrard just said, “Hold my wallet,” took off his shoes and socks, waded into the pool, and baptized each one!

There are so many more stories. We hope that these few have provided a glimpse into the joy which we have witnessed. We want to thank all of you – our sponsors, financial partners, volunteers, and prayer warriors – who have joined us during these past 25 years in working side-by-side with our Haitian brothers and sisters. Together, we believe our investment in the lives of these young people will keep Hope for Haiti’s Children strong for many years ahead.
In 1995, five of us from the Connecticut Valley Church of Christ set out for a visit to the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere -- Haiti. We went because Ken and Rhonda Bever had a “chance” encounter with Jeantyrard Elmera after a trip they had made the previous year to help at an orphanage in northern Haiti. Though now a U.S. citizen, Jeantyrard was born and educated through his high school years in Haiti. After leaving a government job, he received training in the Bible and became a full-time gospel preacher, church planter, and speaker on the World Radio program in Port-au-Prince. Jeantyrard had met with our congregation and inspired us to “Come and see!” Below is my journal entry as we landed in Port-au-Prince:

“My first experience with Haitian need occurred when we walked out of the airport. A large barbed wire fence separated those with baggage from those with problems. As we stood inside the fenced area, a woman with an obviously sick child called to us asking for money. Cari, Rhonda and I stared at each other and glanced at our fourteen 100 lb. boxes. We wanted to help—it was the whole point of our trip. Should we give her money? Paralysis set in—we didn’t give her anything. She was hardly deterred and confronted us more directly as we left the safe haven of the fence. Our hearts were crushing under the observance of her obvious need, and the sight of the multitudes who were making their way toward us with similar plights. People were shouting Ken Bever’s name—clearly printed on every one of our boxes. The multitudes were pressing us—paralysis evolved into active avoidance. The people grabbed our arms, called to us, shoved their problems into our faces and begged us. We ran away, tried to rationally explain in broken English why we could not help them in that moment, and invited them to church. We finally left the airport with a young boy hanging on to the car through an open window as our truck was moving. He finally let go.”

We soon learned God was up to something in Haiti. We spent the week travelling to fledgling church schools with our Haitian counterparts. We saw Godly men who could help us navigate this wild place and in whom we could put our full trust. Jeantyrard, who lived in Haiti, but whose U.S. citizenship could take him away from this difficult life. Jambon Severe -- whose faith and gift as a worship leader was incredible. Gueston Pacius -- a former Catholic priest who was teaching the children of Cite Soleil, the poorest slum in the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. At the end of our week we had paperwork for 50 children to be sponsored in an organization now called Hope for Haiti’s Children.
Twenty-five years ago, a group of devoted Christians came to Haiti to explore opportunities to do something worthwhile for God. I escorted them to see a group of children who were living in extremely poor conditions. These children were malnourished, sick, neglected, and trapped in poverty. As our Delmas church congregation wanted to do something for these children, I appealed to our guests for help. I remember our visitors’ tears and how they were moved with a great compassion. I am so happy they adopted Haiti as their mission point of focus and that two months later, 13 sponsors agreed to make a difference in a child’s life.

Today, we continue to walk step by step with our Christian brethren and have been recognized in Haiti as a great organization who is helping thousands of children. Year after year, we appreciate all our HFHC mission teams who come to assist us with the children we are helping. Our Hope for Haiti’s Children ministry is a partnership that has never stopped loving the children.

All of you who are supporting Hope for Haiti’s Children can be proud of what is being done with God’s help through this ministry. Our sponsored children are growing up to become medical doctors, nurses, school principals, teachers, preachers -- leaders in their communities, leaders in the church, and also leaders in their families. Life will never be the same for these children – and neither will Haiti.

I want to thank all our supporters and sponsors who have come to our rescue and for all the sacrifices you have made for this ministry. May God continue to shower his blessings upon you, your families, and the children of Haiti.

Project Hope 2030 launches with a $30 million goal to provide more children with hope and opportunity.
The Earthquake

At 4:53pm on January 12, 2010, a massive 7.0 magnitude earthquake shook the earth beneath the capital city of Port-au-Prince. Afterward, the landscape and the lives of three million people were changed forever. Over 300,000 lives were lost in an instant, resulting in a population of grieving families and orphaned children. Approximately 1 million homes were destroyed, forcing people to live on the streets, in tents, or in the rubble that remained. Hope for Haiti’s Children’s three-story school located in the heart of Port-au-Prince crumbled to the ground, killing 36 nursing students and one doctor who were conducting training inside. Hope began to fade...to this day, this earthquake remains the greatest natural disaster in recorded history in the Western Hemisphere.

The Response

In the days and months that followed, Hope for Haiti’s Children responded by sending $1.1 million in emergency relief funds to assist with food, water, clothing, housing, school reconstruction, and medical care. The crisis prompted our Board of Directors to adopt a long-term plan entitled Rebuilding Hope 2020 with the goal of providing a sustainable infrastructure to restore families, strengthen schools, and develop leaders. Rebuilding Hope 2020 had three primary objectives:

1. Nurture outstanding leaders by building and strengthening two locally-operated Christian orphanages
2. Educate outstanding leaders by building and strengthening ten locally-operated Christian schools
3. Train outstanding leaders by providing vocational programs and Christian leadership camps

The Opportunity

Prior to the earthquake, HFHC had acquired 21 acres of land and built a mission house in Thomazeau, Haiti. As we continued to look at the ongoing needs of the Haitian people, it became very clear that this land had a purpose far beyond what was initially imagined. As we prayerfully addressed challenges, solutions emerged, and the Thomazeau Hope Center soon became a beacon of Hope.

The Growth

We would have never dreamed how God would bless the work in the years since the earthquake, but the growth has been more than we could have asked or imagined.

In the ten years since the devastating earthquake, our Rebuilding Hope 2020 partners have helped us fund $5 million of projects to build two homes for orphaned children, educate children in 10 Christian schools in southern and central Haiti, start school lunch programs, and fund the construction of a leadership training camp at our Thomazeau Hope Center. For the children we have been able to reach, the change in their lives has been truly significant.

What’s Next

Project Hope 2030 is our new 10-year strategic plan to continue to nurture, educate, and train poverty-bound Haitian children so they can have the opportunities to become leaders in their homes, churches, and communities. As we reflect on the blessings of the past 25 years and ask God for direction for the future, we rest assured that the Lord will direct our steps as He has in the past.
HFHC's Response to the Pandemic

The first case of COVID-19 at the end of March brought all travel to Haiti to a halt and forced schools, churches, and most businesses to close. By September, the number of cases identified was slightly above 8,300 for Haiti’s 11.4 million people, but many believe that number is much higher. In addition, hospitals are poorly equipped to provide care for the severely ill. We remain grateful that no children, staff members, or administrators in our schools have tested positive.

With children staying home, we had reports of many going hungry since they depend on the lunch that they receive at school each day. In response, we distributed rice and beans on a regular basis to all 2,201 of our sponsored children in all ten schools. This emergency relief was joyfully received and served as a reminder to our children and families that they are not forgotten, and that God provides.

In mid-August schools reopened to complete the 2019-2020 school year on October 9th. In November, they will start the 2020-2021 school year.

The future is uncertain for all of us during this pandemic, and we so appreciate each of you who stand beside us as we endeavor to help the hungry and hurting that God has placed in our care.
